

Okay, so it's been three weeks since college started, and you haven't been to a church or Bible study yet. The Holy Spirit's tugging at your heart, and you know you need to get involved with other Christians. Here are some links to national college-age ministries that will help:

liveabove.com
uscm.org
fca.org
navigators.org
intervarsity.org
student.org
chialpha.com
familylife.com
daveramsey.com
crazylovebook.com
grad2009.com

Listing of campus ministries Campus Crusade for Christ Fellowship of Christian Athletes
Navigators
InterVarsity Christian Fellowship
Baptist Student Ministries
Chi Alpha Campus Ministry Relationships, Family, Marriage
Financial advice
Breaking the spiritual status quo
More transition resources start doing is sleeping in and blowing off church. I was there, believe me. But when you begin to open up your life to a body of believers, walk with them, and are fed with God's Word each week, that's the kind of thing that will keep you on fire." tobyMac

“It is important to be walking in the fellowship of a body of believers—whether a student group or a church. We need people around us who will sharpen us. When you go off to college, the first thing you